DETAILED ACTION

In response to the discovery of a new piece of prior art, the examiner withdraws the previous final rejection made on 7/9/08 and makes the following non-final rejection.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fong (US 5,185,902) in view of Kondo (US 3,952,754). Fong teaches a shoe horn 1 whose grip section is constituted to be folded into two parts at the central portions 231. The device further includes a portion capable of back scratching portion 21a formed at the distal end of the body. Fong further teaches the handle being bent in the breadth direction like a bow at the portion 1 as shown in Fig. 3. Fong does not teach the elastic body for patting the human body as claimed. Kondo teaches a hairbrush including the removable elastic body 14 (rubber) for use of patting the human body. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the device of Fong with that of Kondo to provide the dandruff removing capabilities.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2 and 5-6 are allowable.

Claims 3 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
